

Europe in Emerging Asia

Opportunities and Obstacles in Political and Economic Encounters

Edited by Fredrik Erixon and Krishnan Srinivasan

“Erixon and Srinivasan have produced a rare book: intricate and elegant; optimistic and realistic; descriptive and prescriptive ... [T]hey tell the complex story of how diverse European states are engaging with their diverse Asian counterparts.” – William Antholis, Director and CEO of the Miller Center of Public Affairs, University of Virginia

This book explores the relationship between European and emerging Asian economies, as globalization changes the international economic and political landscape.

Reflecting on past interactions and possibilities for the future, it brings together Asian and European perspectives from former politicians, diplomats, and academic experts to examine questions around trade and security, rights and climate change, identity clashes, and the colonial legacy.

Europe in Emerging Asia is a timely consideration of highly topical questions that will shape international politics in the twenty-first century.

“This volume, featuring a refreshingly diverse set of highly knowledgeable contributors, addresses a gap in much global scholarship and commentary: the relationship between Europe, particularly the EU, and much of Asia.” – David Malone, Rector of the United Nations University and Under-Secretary-General of the United Nations

“This is an excellent overview of relationships between Europe and Asia, which are exceptionally important but too frequently undervalued.” – Lord Christopher Patten, Former Governor of Hong Kong, EU Commissioner, former Chairman of the BBC trust, Presently Chancellor of Oxford University

“This important book offers valuable insights into relations between the European Union and Asia, and the EU's role - or lack of one - in the development of a new world economic and political order.” – Anatol Lieven, School of Foreign Service, Georgetown University, Qatar
